

Colloquium Global History

Sebastian Conrad / Michael Goebel
Summer Term 2015
Mondays 6–8 pm
Koserstr. 20, 14195 Berlin
Room: 125

- 25 April Kiri Paramore (Leiden University)
Confucian Fascism – A Global History
- 9 May Dieter Langewiesche (Universität Tübingen)
Warum überleben Monarchien? Zum Funktionswandel der Institution Monarchie seit dem 19. Jahrhundert in globalhistorischer Perspektive
Gemeinsame Veranstaltung mit dem Kolloquium von Stefan Rinke
- 23 May Frederick Cooper (New York University)
Meet the author and discussion of: “Africa and Empire,” in: Frederick Cooper, Africa in the World: Capitalism, Empire, Nation-State, Cambridge, MA (Harvard University Press) 2014, 11-37.
- 30 May David Armitage (Harvard University)
“Civil War? What Does This Mean?” Mid-Nineteenth-Century Answers to a Nagging Question
Joint venture with Jessica Gienow-Hecht’s colloquium; location: JFK Institute, Lansstr. 7-9, room 340
- June 6 Gergely Baics (Columbia University)
The Social Geography of Near and Far: Built Environment and Residential Patterns in Mid Nineteenth-Century New York City
- June 27 Kris Manjapra (Tufts University)
The Slave, the Apprentice, and the Coolie: The Problem of Freedom across the Caribbean and the Indian Ocean, 1830-1870

July 11, 5 p.m. 1) [Global Histories]: A Student Journal – Journal Release Roundtable
 2) Conferring Ceremony: MA Global History Graduates
Location: Re:work, Georgenstrasse 23; followed by a reception

July 14 (Thursday) John Darwin (Oxford University)
Unlocking the World? Port Cities and Globalisation, 1830-1930
Location: Technische Universität Berlin, Straße des 17. Juni 135, Room: H3005; joint venture with the conference on „Imperial Port Cities“

July 15-16 internal workshop

* Pre-circulated paper; please write to globalhistory@fu-berlin.de for a copy. In these seminar sessions there will be no formal presentation, and we will immediately start the discussion of the text.