Current Research Projects

Knowledge Transfer in the Context of Differentiation and Institutionalization in 16th and 17th century Korea

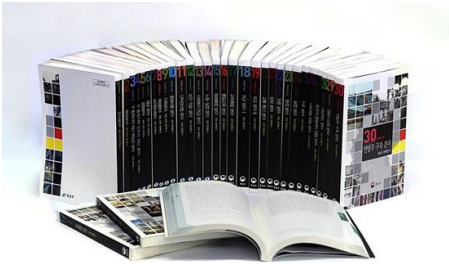

Funded by the German Research Foundation (DFG)

The second year of the current phase of the Collaborative Research Center (CRC) 980 "Episteme in Motion" (SFB 980) at the Freie Universität Berlin proved to be quite busy for Eun-Jeung Lee, Vladimir Glomb and Martin Gehlmann. Besides active work in two conceptual study groups, the project members participated in the organization and realization of the annual conference of the CRC under the theme "Wissensokonomien – Order and Transgression in Premodern Culture" in June 2018. Together with CRC researchers from Jewish, German Literature, and Arabic Studies a workshop on the topic of "Performing Economies. Changing and Exchanging Goods in Pre-Modern Ritual Communities" was conducted. In the workshop Martin Gehlmann presented on the Korean Scholar Yi Ŏnjök (1491-1553) and rituals in his honor at different Korean Confucian academies (sŏwŏn) and later discussed how rituals can be viewed as practices of exchange.

Already in May 2018 an international conference titled "What is an Academy? Early Modern Learned Societies in a Transcultural Perspective" was organized to look at the phenomenon of academies from an interdisciplinary perspective (see separate report). In October 2018 the research team, together with a delegation from the CRC and one from Nagoya University, traveled to South Korea for conference participation and a fieldtrip to Confucian Academies in the Andong area. After a first workshop at the Academy of Korean Studies in Songnam the delegation moved to Andong at the invitation of the Korean Studies Institute. After an introduction to the wooden printing plates stored by the Institute, close by Tosan Academy and the traditional manor of Kim Hakbong were visited by the group. After the return to Seoul the SNU-FU KoreaNet Workshop 2018 was held at the Kyujanggak Institute of Seoul National University (see separate report).

Further research efforts include a trip to North Korea as part of the FU participation in the "International Conference on the Development of Science and Human Welfare" at Kim Il Sung University in September 2018 (see separate report). After the conference the project members could visit three Confucian academies and gain valuable information on the state of conservation and research on Confucian academies in North Korea. Martin Gehlmann received a scholarship from Hunan University in Changsha, PRC and stayed from March to June 2018 at this important center of Confucian academy studies in China to further his dissertation research.

Sharing the German Government's Documents on Unification and Integration

Funded by the Ministry of Unification, Republic of Korea Since 2010

As unification remains a keyword in Korea, the German "Turn" of 1989/90 is a continual focus for research. Since 2010, the Institute of Korean Studies at Freie Universität Berlin has produced a comprehensive collection of documents on Germany's reunification process. Set off and financed by the South Korean Government, this project is attempting to elucidate policies and measures taken by federal, regional, and municipal governments and other institutions to facilitate the merger of political, economic, social, and other systems of the two German countries. In 2018, the Institute of Korean Studies presented six new volumes in the Korean edition, covering the topics of migration, social class fluctuation, legislation of DDR for unification, judicial system, federal prime minister's office, and building federal states. And with new six volumes, this project, including 30 volumes, has been completed.

GEnKO German-Korean Partnership Programme 2018

Funded by the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD)

The Institute of Korean Studies (FU) and the Institute for Peace and Unification Studies (SNU) established the ongoing research cooperation on the "Museumization of Memories – Dealing and Promotion of Peace" in 2017. The project is supported by the GEnKO program for two years (2017-18), funded by the German Academic Exchange Program (DAAD).

The overall purpose of the program is the promotion of bilateral cooperation and partnership between German and Korean universities.

In 2018, the Institute of Korean Studies sent one graduate student and one PhD candidate to Korea. The MA student Hannah Burchhardt had the opportunity to study at the SNU for one term as an exchange student. The PhD candidate Irene Maier spent one month at the SNU for fieldwork regarding her thesis on Ernst Fraenkel and his time in Korea. She investigated the way in which the periods of Korean history relevant to Fraenkel's life and work in Korea - the so-called „period of liberation“ or „period of the US military government“ from 1945 until the foundation of the Republic of Korea in 1948 as well as the first years of the Republic of Korea until the outbreak of the Korean War - and Fraenkel's fields of activity are represented in museums and state memorial sites and documented in state and university archives.

International Conferences and Workshops

11-12 May 2018:

“The Political in the Institutionalization and Ritualization of Public Remembrance”

From May 11 to 12, 2018 the Institute of Korean Studies together with the Department of Korean Studies at Ruhr-Universität-Bochum held the international workshop “The Political in the Institutionalization and Ritualization of Public Remembrance” as part of the AKS research project “Transcoding as Cultural and Social Practice”.

The conference consisted of three panels with each panel illuminating different aspects of public remembrance. To broaden the scope and looking beyond Korea two internationally renowned experts have also been invited for the discussion of their paper. Miranda Brown (University of Michigan) gave a fascinating insight into “The Meaning of Ritual and Public Remembrance in Classical China”. Also, Maoz Azaryahu (University of Haifa) held an intriguing presentation on “Mount Herzl: The Creation of Israel’s National Cemetery”.

The Political in the Institutionalization
and Ritualization of Public Remembrance

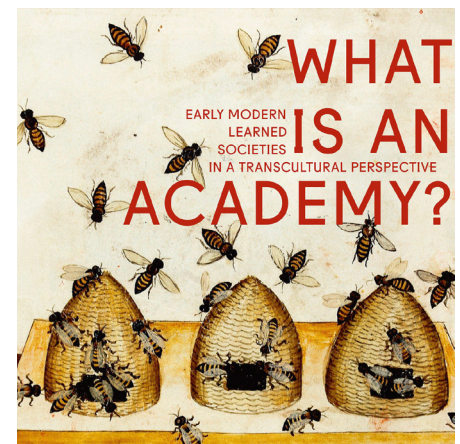

22-23 May 2018:

“What is an Academy? Early Modern Learned Societies in a Transcultural Perspective”

Organized by the projects A07, B05 and C09 of the CRC 980 “Episteme in Motion”

This international conference was jointly organized by members of the CRC from three different projects conducting research on various educational institutions subsumed under the name “Academy” in Europe and Asia. After the research team of the project “Knowledge Transfer in the Context of Differentiation and Institutionalization in 16th and 17th century Korea” had organized a conference on Confucian academies in East Asia in 2017, this conference was designed to provide a more interdisciplinary view on the matter. Although scholars in the last decades have begun to study academies in a comparative perspective, they have often tended to consider these institutions as regional (or national) modifications of a given institutional type. In contrast, the conference asked participants to explore how the specific features of academies were shaped by a dialogue between historical models and contemporary socio-cultural contexts. The conference was conceived in the framework of the Collaborative Research Centre “Episteme in Motion”, which, investigating processes of knowledge transformation in premodern cultures, is dedicated to showing how transformations of knowledge do indeed take place continuously even in societies that describe themselves and their cultural practices as stable. Contributions during the conference ranged from presentations on Jesuit Academies in Asia to literary societies in early modern Europe and Spanish art academies in the 18th century.

8 June 2018:

First Annual Kim Dae Jung Lecture – Myeong-Sook Han

This year the Institute of Korean Studies held their first Annual Kim Dae Jung Lecture on June 8th 2018.

The lecture opened with a welcoming by Professor Lee Eun-Jeung followed by a greeting and a video message by Mrs. Lee Hee-ho, Kim Dae Jung's widow and former First Lady of the Republic of Korea where she thanked the audience and the University for honoring her late husband's memory and legacy.

Honorary Guest and Speaker Han Myeong-Sook talked about her own experience as the Minister for Women under Kim Dae Jung and about his lifelong struggle for peace and democracy on the Korean peninsula. She mentioned her family's escape from North Korea before the war and that she personally was involved in the fight for the democratization and the help they received from Germany with that.

Following her speech, Han Myeong-Sook participated in a discussion with Dr Norbert Baas (Ambassador for Germany in the Republic of Korea 2006-2009).

Academy of Unification Training Program

Lessons of the German Reunification and the Korean Peninsula

By now, the Annual Training Program, which is financed by the South Korean government and conducted by the Institute of Korean Studies at Freie Universität Berlin, launched in 2010 to provide perspectives regarding contextualized data as well as policies, administrative arrangements, institutions, and ideas of the German Unification, has grown into a successful and well-established part of the academic research and knowledge transfers. In the interest of understanding and adapting the knowledge of the past situation between the DDR and the BRD in Germany in comparison to the current, ongoing situation between North and South Korea, the program was structured and consolidated through the DFG transfer project T03 "Knowledge Transfer as Intercultural Translation: Development of Exemplary Practices of Transformation-preparing Activities in Korea" from 2013 to 2015. The program consisted of South Korean officials, who were introduced to several German institutions in which they got to work with documents and files concerning their research topic. Furthermore, they were able to participate in interviews with politicians and various kind of experts in their area of their research, participate in different seminars and workshops, and they had the opportunity to visit different historical sites with guided tours provided.

Public Relations and International Networking

Accompanying the Federal President on his official visit to Seoul and Pyeongchang

At the invitation of the Federal President's Office, Prof Dr Eun-Jeung Lee accompanied the Federal President and his wife on this official visit to Seoul and Pyeongchang, including to a series of meetings and discussions with high-ranking Korean officials, foremost amongst them the President of the Republic of Korea, Moon Jae In, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Speaker of the National Assembly. Such talks focused mainly on the relations between North and South Korea and the German experience of policies of détente and, ultimately, of national reunification. Prof Lee also accompanied the Federal President and his wife to the opening ceremony of the Olympic Winter Games and to various functions and events aimed at providing opportunities to encounter and experience Korean culture and tradition.
